As a GEAR UP Coordinator, one of your main responsibilities is facilitating a variety of college visit experiences for students and their families who may not otherwise have the opportunity. These GEAR UP college visits serve to help students and their families see college in their future as they “Dream It. Plan It. Do It.” To support you, the Appalachian GEAR UP Partnership developed this Coordinator’s Guide to Successful GEAR UP College Visits for Middle and High School Students and Families that is geared generally toward 4 year colleges and universities, but with adaptations to community college settings as well. Our goal is that this guide will help GEAR UP Coordinators:

- Think outside the box to make the visit intentional, informative, inspirational, and interactive
- Connect students’ and families’ needs and interests with college information and mentors
- Take ownership of the college visit planning process
- Use operational tools for planning and implementing a successful college visit
Why do GEAR UP College Visits for middle and high school students make a life-long difference?

DREAM IT. College visits are often GEAR UP students’ and their families’ first opportunity on a college campus - which can be a life changing experience. Students – and their families – can imagine themselves as a college student by physically visiting at least one college or university, and hopefully several postsecondary options including two-year community colleges, 4-year public, and private colleges and universities both in the Appalachian region and across North Carolina and neighboring states. On a college campus, students get a sense of college by touching, seeing, tasting, hearing, smelling, and feeling the environment. By increasing awareness to college, as early as the 6th grade, students are encouraged to set long-term college goals early so that they can “begin with the end in mind” – that we all believe you can and will go to college.

PLAN IT. During the college visit, students, their families, and teachers as chaperones learn directly from college representatives, professors, and college students to increase college knowledge about options, majors, academic match, social fit, and financial aid. By setting goals and acquiring new information about what it takes to get to college, students gain motivation to take attendance and academic preparation seriously in middle school since it sets the tone for high school and beyond. College visits are also a powerful way to teach curriculum since the college campus setting promotes experiential, hands-on learning which allows students to open their minds to new opportunities.

DO IT. Research shows that students who attend at least one college visit are 1 ½ times more likely to enroll in college after high school graduation, and even 3 times more likely if a parent attends the college visit with the student (Tillery, 2013*).

As a national, federally funded college access program, GEAR UP stands for Gaining Early Awareness and Readiness for Undergraduate Programs. Among the wide variety of GEAR UP services available to students and their families, a key component to raising awareness about college is through the direct experience of a college visit. The national GEAR UP program defines the college visit service as the following:

College Visit: A physical visit to a college campus by a student facilitated/supervised/led by GEAR UP staff, teachers, college representatives, or other school staff. College visits should include an official tour, presentation(s) by admissions, financial aid, academic departments, student affairs, residence life, multicultural affairs, or other college departments.*

Not only are college visits an important GEAR UP service to students and their families, but college visits are also one of the Appalachian GEAR UP Partnership’s COLLEGE READY: SKILLS priorities.

This definition is adapted from the College and Career Readiness Evaluation Consortium (CCREC) in partnership with the National Council on Community and Education Partnerships (NCCEP): GEAR UP Student and Parent/Family Definitions: Guidelines for GEAR UP Program Services.
Ensure that ALL students and families have the opportunity to have exposure through college visits. These college visits should expose students, their families, and educators to the sincere belief that ALL students can go to college and that with planning you can find the right fit/match. The visits should also emphasize the need for students to be prepared with a rigorous academic curriculum in secondary school, be interactive, and share college planning and financial aid knowledge. The most effective college visits are when students, families, and teachers work together to be prepared for the visit and reflect afterwards.

What are the expectations for implementing GEAR UP College Visits?

The Appalachian GEAR UP Partnership encourages partner GEAR UP school districts and GEAR UP Coordinators to implement the following components of GEAR UP College Visits:

- Each GEAR UP student should attend at least one college visit by the end of the 8th grade.
- Each GEAR UP student should attend at least two college visits by the end of the 12th grade.
- Each GEAR UP student should have at least one family member attend a college visit.
- Each GEAR UP College Visit should be intentional, informative, inspirational, and interactive.
- Each GEAR UP school should have at least one college visit opportunity per grade level served per year.
What are some ideas for how to make GEAR UP College Visits “Outside the Box”?

INTENTIONAL
- Connect classroom curriculum to the experiential nature of the college visit. Organize 4 separate day-long college visits to a local community college for the entire 7th grade class (30 students for each visit) that is connected to STEM careers and the curriculum. Math and Science teachers work with community college faculty to lesson plan leading up to and during the visit with a “student showcase” while on campus. These teachers and family members are invited to the college visits and have a special session with the financial aid office that is also connected to the math curriculum.

  For example, students in 7th grade science are learning about biology and the human organ systems. During the college visit, students are invited to tour the biochemistry labs and hear directly from students who are conducting research on sickle cell anemia and other diseases – and even do a micro-pipette experiment themselves! (Check out NCCU’s BRITE Futures Center for more on this).

- Identify a group of students who are interested in general science (or maybe aren’t – yet!), but who are not yet sure of career options in this broad field. Find a college or university that has a specialty major or center in a science field and organize a specialized college visit. Here are some examples from 4-year public North Carolina universities:

  Appalachian State University is home to the 2011 U.S. Department of Energy Solar Decathlon People’s Choice Award and various Renewable Energy Initiative projects. Come check us out! (https://rei.appstate.edu)

  NC Central University houses the only formal biotech degree program in NC and provides interactive tours of the facility and hands-on experiments for student groups at the BRITE Futures Center. (http://brite.nccu.edu)

  NC State University has a top ranked College of Veterinary Medicine is a driving force in veterinary research and training. (https://cvm.ncsu.edu/)

  UNC Asheville houses The Student Environmental Center that is a student-led initiative to foster sustainability and community outreach. (https://sec.unca.edu/)

  Western Carolina University has a state-of-the-art laboratory for analysis of human movement connected to the new Health & Human Sciences Building. (http://www.wcu.edu/academics/departments-schools-colleges/HHS/hhs-schools-depts/pt/about-the-physical-therapy-department/physical-therapy-facilities.asp)
What are some ideas for how to make GEAR UP College Visits “Outside the Box”?

INFORMATIVE

- Ask students to take a “Before the College Visit Survey” to gauge interest and needs. Inform the admissions office or university point of contact on what your students need more information. Brainstorm departments, centers or offices on campuses that could provide sessions or tours.

- Sometimes even adults don’t know their own career inventory or skill set! Before the college visit, have students take a career inventory or learning styles assessment. Then, send the results to the career exploration office and set up sessions with career services that cover topics such as personal inventory, how they match with different academic majors, careers, and workforce statistics. Students can then meet with professors and students majoring in each of these areas, or academic advising to discuss the process for being undecided and declaring a major. Students may even tour a special center, lab, or facility on campus that is connected to their academic major or career inventory.

INSPIRATIONAL

- Recruit alumni from your middle or high school who are current students at the college or university to speak candidly on a student panel about their experiences and recommendations for success prior to and during college. If alumni are not available, find students who are the first in their family to go to college, from a rural setting, who qualify for financial aid, or who have had unconventional paths to college success. Students who are the most comfortable in this setting are often campus leaders, admissions ambassadors, athletes, or students who have experience speaking about their story in front of a large group. Ask these college students to convey to your students that they believe in them and the fact that they too can someday go to college. After the panel, divide the students into groups to meet these college students individually to eat lunch, conduct a campus tour, and have time to share experiences informally.

- Create a social media campaign or hashtag that encourages students to believe in themselves as “college material” serving to inspire both themselves and others like them to aspire to go to college.
What are some ideas for how to make GEAR UP College Visits “Outside the Box”?

INTERACTIVE

After a quick presentation by the multicultural affairs office about the importance of diversity in campus life, students have the opportunity to interact with each other, gain a mentor, and create a tool for expression. During the visit, students work in small groups to create posters about themselves, their home communities, and their college dreams. Each group has a college student who helps them through the process and will continue a mentor relationship after the college visit. Students have a chance to present their poster and college dreams in front of a larger group.

Mentors and students participate in follow-up Skype sessions with faculty and undergraduate students who they met during the college visits, and write about their experiences in letters to their future selves, or to submit in a grant-wide newsletter.
Grades Served: 6 • 7 • 8

Intention/Goals of the College Visit
- Learn what college life is all about (living arrangements, social aspects, dining hall experience, etc.)
- Let students visit and “see” the liberties, responsibilities, and differences between the managed schedule of middle school vs. the independent college life
- Start envisioning themselves on a college campus

Examples
- Local and/or regional college campuses that give them a “flavor” of college life
- Colleges should have a large proportion of residential students on campus
- Should be able to see how students dress on campus, where they eat, what activities they do on a regular basis (playing Frisbee on the lawn, studying outside, reading, hanging out with friends, exercising, etc.)
- Visit the arenas and stadiums

What the college visit should NOT be?
- Financial aid, SAT scores, GPAs, etc., although important to the college process, are not as interesting as college life to middle school students. At this age, it’s all about what makes college different than middle school and high school.

Grades Served: 9

Intention/Goals of the College Visit
- Help students imagine themselves as future college students
- Overview of college options and requirements
- Ideal time to take students to visit “reach” colleges and universities
- Understanding the importance of getting good grades all throughout their high school career

Examples
- Seeing and hearing the expectations for SAT scores, GPAs, and Community Service requirements will serve to inspire and motivate students to aim high and work hard if they want to attend the college of their choice
- Ivy League Schools, prestigious institutions, and elite colleges that serve a particular type of student
- Admissions presentations are very important at this stage

What the college visit should NOT be?
- 9th grade should not be about compromise! It is about dreaming big and starting to create a path for academic achievement before it is too late and they are forced to compromise.

How do I prepare for a successful GEAR UP College Visit that is intentional, informative, inspirational, and interactive?

These top 10 ways to prepare for a GEAR UP College Visit are a sure way to help you plan and execute a successful college visit for you, your students, their families, and educators as chaperones.

1. Form a strategy, not just a single event. Use the GEAR UP College Visit Strategy Chart to strategize possible college visit locations for each grade level as the cohort of students move through middle and high school. Keep in mind that the main goal for middle school is to gain exposure to any college so that students (and their families and educators) imagine themselves as college students, increase awareness of college options, and gain college and financial aid knowledge. Then, as students move through high school, the focus of the college visit shifts towards finding a specific academic match and fit. For more information on North Carolina’s 110 colleges and universities, including admissions contact info, check out College Foundation of North Carolina (CFNC.org) where you can explore postsecondary institutions as you plan, apply, and pay for college.

2. For effective planning, research the school district and school-based operational policies. Since each school district, and school even, have their own policies – please be sure to research what these policies are before you start the planning process. These policies may range from what types of transportation are allowed at different distances, how parents can volunteer as chaperones, the cost of a substitute if a teacher is a chaperone, how to get a check or payment for lunches in the college cafeteria, and so on. For support as you identify and plan for these important operational components of your college visit, check out the GEAR UP College Visit Operations & Policies Planning Worksheet.

3. Follow the “order of operations” for smooth scheduling and communications. It’s important to plan components of your college visit in an order that makes sense for your district and school policies. Check out the GEAR UP College Visit Operations & Policies Planning Worksheet can help. Find dates that work for your school calendar and ask others for input (including bus transportation, principals, counselors, teachers, families, etc.). Then reach out to the college admissions or another point person who will help you coordinate the visit and get the college visit in writing. Once the date is set, recruit school staff as volunteers, and get it on the official calendar along with making arrangements for bus transportation. Then communicate official dates to the school staff and make an official announcement once all stakeholders are aware. Ask around to see if your school or district has another order they’d prefer – and be sure to follow.
How do I prepare for a successful GEAR UP College Visit that is intentional, informative, inspirational, and interactive?

4. Intention with purpose. For each college visit, prior to reaching out to the specific college or university, use the Before the GEAR UP College Visit Survey to gauge student interest. This tool can help you identify the purpose of the college visit, target audiences including grade levels and teachers interested, and questions or needs from participating students and families. Then, find a point of contact at the college or university (usually admissions, but often in other departments, as well) to inquire with the college or university on availability and ways to engage your specific audience. Check out the Make It Intentional: Rubric for Planning & Implementing a Successful GEAR UP College Visit and Dear College Letter or Email (Template).

5. Imagine yourself. It’s more than just a campus tour, a college visit is an imagination portal where students use their senses to gain exposure to the college environment. It’s a day-long event, generally from around 9am to 2pm that should include at least the following: an info session from admissions, financial aid, or career services; a mini lecture or short interactive presentation from a professor; a student panel; and lunch in the cafeteria/dining hall. For more information on what this looks like, check out the GEAR UP College Visit Sample Schedules (Emerging, Engaging & Empowering). We also strongly encourage you to reach out to the college or university contact in admissions or other campus department, on the importance of identifying college student representatives who are alumni of the visiting school or from a similar background (for example: rural, racial/ethnic, first-generation, qualify for financial aid, etc.). Hearing from college students who can relate to students from our GEAR UP schools will help our students imagine themselves as college students.

6. Get the word out and get families involved. Invite students and families and share info via letters sent home with students, morning announcements, email, newsletters, an online calendar, mass text messaging, mass phone voicemail, fliers on bulletin boards, tables at athletic and school events – and more! A great way to engage families early in GEAR UP, raise awareness about college, and increase college and financial aid knowledge is by hosting a mandatory family meeting before the college visit to share expectations and sign permission slips. If a family cannot attend the meeting, then arrange a one-on-one-meeting or phone call. It’s also helpful to support and encourage families to attend the college visit, just be sure to double check district policy when it comes to families serving as chaperones or riding school/activity buses. For suggestions on content for the meeting, check out the GEAR UP College Visit Family Meeting Sample Agenda and GEAR UP College Visit Family Meeting Letter.
How do I prepare for a successful GEAR UP College Visit that is intentional, informative, inspirational, and interactive?

7. Prepare academically in the classroom, after school, or evening workshop. Ask teachers to get involved during class time to help students get prepared for the college visit by incorporating content into academics/classroom activities: Use computer lab time to set up a CFNC.org student account and explore postsecondary options; Use math to calculate the distance and time needed to travel to the college; Use writing to draft research questions to ask college professors, students, and staff; Use reading to comprehend a story about what it’s like to go to college; Use science to prepare for a campus chemistry expo. For more student-based resources that you could use to prepare for a college visit either in the classroom, during after-school programming, or at a family meeting, check out the following: Online College Knowledge Scavenger Hunt, Making Sense out of the College Visit Experience, GEAR UP College Visit K-W-L Chart

8. Check in frequently with the college and school district representatives as you get ready. Don’t forget to check in with the college leading up to the visit to see what info they need from you and to see how the planning is going. Remember to stay on top of all of the financial details that are specific to your school district — including payment for lunches, bus transportation, and snacks for before and after. You can refer to the GEAR UP College Visit Operations & Policies Planning Worksheet.

9. Set clear expectations and be organized so that you and your students are over-prepared. Remind everyone of the GEAR UP College Visit Expectations (for students, families, chaperones, and GEAR UP Coordinators). Create a college visit binder with all the key info: rosters of who is attending (distribute to all chaperones along with a reminder to be aware of safety protocols and to share contact info with chaperones) and make sure you have campus map, parking info, drop off, and a contact phone for campus point of contact. Remind students and families the day before the event and set a policy for being late if it is an early morning departure. Make sure you have back-up contact info printed out of important school district and college contacts’ phone numbers as well as a map. Know how you are going to pay for lunch! Use the GEAR UP College Visit Roster (template) and safety system to keep track of all students.
How do I prepare for a successful GEAR UP College Visit that is intentional, informative, inspirational, and interactive?

10. Live and learn! No matter if you are chaperoning your first college visit, or have done too many to count – it’s always a learning experience to take a group of students, their families, and teachers as chaperones to a college campus. Every single visit will shed light on something new you didn’t know, hadn’t thought of, a way of doing something that is better, and the ever changing nature of a college campus. As a good role model, be open to new experiences and stay engaged during the entire college visit. If it’s helpful, here’s a GEAR UP College Visit De-Brief Worksheet to help you and your students keep track of what you’ve learned, what you’d do differently, and any ideas you have for your next college visit. This may be a great way to get the conversation started on the bus ride home, or you could also check in to see what everyone learned using the GEAR UP College Visit K-W-L Chart. Also, be sure to have students complete the After the GEAR UP College Visit Survey to get their thoughts on the experience.
Taking Ownership of the GEAR UP
College Visit Planning Process

☐ Start planning at least 2-3 months ahead (preferably 6 months, even!)

☐ Ask around for names of people at the college or university you are interested in visiting; sometimes personal connections or alumni from your community high school can go a long way!

☐ Don’t be afraid to search around the internet for a contact name at the college/university to email or call; it’s usually admissions, but sometimes in another department.

☐ Get your introduction down so you can quickly explain to the college or university professional who you are, what the GEAR UP program does, why you are interested in taking a middle school group to that campus, dates you are interested in, a potential sample schedule, and areas your students and families need more information on.

☐ Once the college/university professional agrees to a GEAR UP College Visit, then let them know you will send a student/chaperone roster closer to the event date. Request details on how to process payment including the cost for lunch per participant, bus drop-off/pick-up info, parking, location for registration, and the tentative schedule.

☐ Get everything in writing to finalize details – this will help you keep track of everything.

☐ Check in frequently with everyone involved to see how planning is going, especially in the weeks/days leading up to the visit.

☐ Be gracious and thankful – often hosting college visits is something “extra” for your campus contacts.
What should I expect the day of the GEAR UP College Visit?

- A representative (teacher, counselor, principal, Coordinator, etc.) from the middle or high school should be the lead chaperone on the trip and have all the key information including agenda, bus drop-off/parking details, university and school district contact numbers, student and chaperone rosters, first aid kit, etc.

- Try your best to leave on time and follow through with policies set forth.

- Call the college or university contact if you are running late or lost.

- Things don’t always go as planned (and that’s not necessarily a bad thing) – be flexible! Always have a plan B, C, D. Remember, you are an example to the students. Flexibility and adaptability are skills we want them to learn too. Show them what flexible and adaptable looks like when things don’t go as planned.

- Communicate clearly and often to remind the group what is coming up next.

- Tired legs! Wear comfortable shoes and eat breakfast. Encourage students to bring a water bottle — they tend to get thirsty on walking tours.

- Keep track of all your receipts for any costs incurred such as lunch and snacks.

- Keep students as engaged as possible; conduct a pre visit activity on the bus (using one of the inserts) and remind everyone of expectations.

- Be a role model for your students, their families, and chaperones. Pay attention, stay engaged, be excited, look at everything from a fresh perspective, and ask questions.

- Use social media to share your experiences (following district policy).

- Thank the college reps throughout the day and follow-up with lingering questions or ideas.

- After the visit do a survey on the bus along with a debrief activity.

- Rest up! It’s been a long day!
What an experience! Now what should we do after the GEAR UP College Visit?

☐ Debrief with everyone! Make a list of what you’ll do the same and differently next time using the worksheet; be sure to make these notes soon after the visit while it’s still fresh in your head.

☐ Send thank you notes and emails and encourage students to do the same. Consider making this a classroom activity for students to practice their writing skills.

☐ Read surveys and make changes based on the feedback you receive.

☐ Ask students to write articles about their experiences to share in GEAR UP publications.

☐ Enter services into the GEAR UP database.

☐ Complete financial paperwork for your district and GEAR UP program.

☐ Start working on your next college visit using the rubric.

Hello <Insert Name>,

I’m writing on behalf of the GEAR UP program at <Insert School District/School Name> and would love to schedule a College Visit for about <Insert Estimated Number of Participants> of my <Insert Grade Level> students and their families to <Insert College or University name>. We were looking to schedule a visit in about 8-12 weeks or a semester in advance, if that works for you all.

Is this something that you all are interested in hosting for our student group? Or, is there another person or office that you’d suggest that I contact? Or, another time of the year that works better?

I’m more than happy to talk with you by phone to answer more questions about GEAR UP, the student group, and ideas for a college visit to your campus. Feel free to reach me at <insert phone number>.

Below is some additional information about the GEAR UP program and the potential college visit.

GEAR UP

The goal of our GEAR UP program is to increase the number of students who enroll and succeed in college, particularly from low-income and/or rural schools. A major way that we prepare students is by increasing college knowledge and early awareness from the college visit experience. For more info: http://gearup.appstate.edu/ and <insert local GEAR UP program website here>.

Potential GEAR UP College Visit Agenda & Sessions

If possible, we are looking for a college visit that could be more than a campus tour and last from about 9:00 am to 2:00 pm. Below are some ideas of offices, student groups, professors, or departments that could be involved – and we defer to you all on what may be best for your campus (see attached for a sample schedule, too). Our goal is for GEAR UP College Visits to be Intentional, Informative, Inspiring, and Interactive – and creative ideas are welcome!

- Admissions Overview
- Financial Aid Overview
- Student Group Demo/Performance
- Undergraduate Student Panel
- Campus Tour
- Lunch in a Dining Hall
- Mock Classroom Experience with a Professor
- Visit to a Specialty Center or Lab
- Academic Advising
- Career Services
- Mentoring/Support Programs
- Multicultural Student Affairs
- Study Abroad

We are really excited for an opportunity to visit your campus!

Thank you,

Dear Parent or Guardian,

We are excited to invite you and your student to the upcoming GEAR UP College Visit to <Insert Name of College/University> on <Insert Date>. Our goal is that this college visit will increase you and your student’s college knowledge and aspirations to go to college in the future. The college visit is free of cost, including lunch and snacks, and an official school district field trip. <Insert more info here if this is an overnight field trip.>

In order for your student to participate in this college visit, please attend the required GEAR UP Family Meeting at the following location, date and time. During this meeting, we will discuss the GEAR UP College Visit agenda, event details including departure and return locations and times, expectations, and how family members can participate. There will also be time to sign and turn in permission forms, as well as answer questions.

Don’t hesitate to start small at “emerging” and build up your college visit experiences to the “empowering” level where students are leading the experience. You can use this rubric to identify where both you and your school are in implementing college visits. Then, aim to move towards improving each and every GEAR UP college visit experience! This rubric has examples to help you get started.

GEAR UP College Visit
Expectations

Student Expectations

☐ Arrive on time for the bus departure
☐ Wear comfortable shoes and clothes (including a jacket) – there will be a lot of walking outside
☐ Be respectful to all people at all times
☐ Be an active listener and ask questions
☐ Lead with grace and courtesy – say thank you, please, and you’re welcome
☐ Inside voices, even outside
☐ Technology stays away during sessions
☐ Stand proud as a positive representative of you, your family, community, school, and national GEAR UP program
☐ The experience is what you make of it... make it a good one

Family Expectations

☐ Talk to your student about the upcoming college visit
☐ Attend a GEAR UP College Visit Family Meeting, and if you can’t attend contact the GEAR UP Coordinator to set up an individual meeting or phone call
☐ Sign permission slips
☐ Participate in the college visit, and complete the necessary district paperwork to serve as a “chaperone” or volunteer
☐ Arrive on time for the bus departure and pick-up
☐ Be an active listener and ask questions
☐ Remember, that you are a role model to all the students – keep technology away (to the extent possible)
☐ Stand proud as a positive representative of you, your family, community, school, and national GEAR UP program
☐ The experience is what you make of it... make it a good one

GEAR UP Coordinator/ Chaperone Expectations

☐ Be Prepared! Have all contact names and numbers, student rosters, emergency contacts, district and school level information handy in a folder or binder – each chaperone and teacher in the group should have each adult’s cell phone number for safety purposes
☐ Know who your bus driver is (and their cell phone number!) and make sure they know where they are going prior to leaving, have a map, drop-off, and parking info just in case
☐ Set up a process for making sure you have all students accounted for at all times by using a counting or buddy system
☐ Remember, you are a role model to all the students and families – keep technology away (to the extent possible)
☐ Chaperones are in charge of sharing behavioral expectations with students and managing student behavior during the college visit, if issues arise – be sure to address it with the student
☐ Be engaged and guide the visit by asking questions and guiding conversation
☐ Stand proud as a positive representative of you, your family, community, school, and national GEAR UP program

COLLEGE

Dream It. Plan It. Do It.
It’s never too early to experience college. The best way to prepare early to be a successful college student in the future is to go on a college visit as a middle school student. When you visit a college - especially if it is your first time - there will be so much to take in. Your senses may be on overload with everything that you touch, see, taste, smell, and hear! You can use this quick guide to help you make sense out of the college visit experience so that you can eventually find your college fit and make the right college academic match.

After attending the GEAR UP College Visit, I plan on the following after high school:
☒ Attend a 2 year community college
☒ Attend a 4 year college or university
☒ Enter the workforce only
☒ Enter the military only
☒ No idea
